Major drainage work completed in annexed area

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

After nearly the 20th anniversary of annexation, a project to rework the drainage system from Sabe to Bowling and from the Old Spanish Trail to US-90 is almost complete.

During Bay St. Louis full-time and temporary employees and rental equipment, the work is being conducted economically but in a manner that should last for decades, according to Mayor Victor Frankiewicz Jr.

Although the actual drainage improvements began only a few months ago, project planning and design work has been underway since shortly after Frankiewicz took office.

"The work involves extensive work on the ditches on all streets in the area and replacing almost every culvert which crosses the roads out there," he said.

"This work will be a permanent solution to flooding and serve the area well into the next century."

Frankiewicz

"The work in progress is designed to handle the area even when it is completely developed and we should never have to go in there again to rebuild the drainage system," Frankiewicz said.

Most of the major ditch work is finished and this will provide a substantial drainage outfall from Seventh Street, all the way through to US-90, he said.

"And even though the work is not complete, what has been done so far has already helped drainage in the area and should help eliminate major flooding problems on Seventh, Victoria, Eighth, Bismark, Ninth and Sabe streets," he added.

Frankiewicz said the larger outfall ditches will probably be completed by Monday and all remaining to do in the project will be minor culvert replacements and roadside ditch regrading.

Seeding to get grass growing in the open ditches made in the project is also underway.

Regrading and cleaning the smaller ditches on the roadways is expected to begin next week, he said.

"I have had a lot of calls asking why we are doing so much work, why we are taking so long and why don't we just pull the ditch with a grader and call it quits," he said.

"The work has been going very slowly, partly because of the weather and partly because we are having to remove just about all of the drainage work done in the area since the subdivision was platted at the turn of the century," Frankiewicz said.

ckiewicz said.

"If we had to do it from scratch we would have been able to do it both cheaper and better but since the subdivision was developed before the drainage was ever worked out, the city was left with the difficult job of piecing together a drainage system among all the existing houses," he added.

Another thing which has taken extra time, is the sloping of ditches so they will not have stagnant water and will be easy to maintain.

"We are using modern laser equipment to do the sloping and I believe this is a first for a local government in this area," he said.

Frankiewicz also said a great deal of care had been taken to do the least amount of digging to keep from messing up the area.

"We are taking more time with this job now but it will be a permanent solution to flooding in the area and will serve the area well into the next century," he said.

In spite of the enormity of the project, Frankiewicz says because of the extensive planning and in-house work, the city is getting the project completed in an economical way.

"We are way ahead of the game by doing the work ourselves," he said.

Installation for two major culvert crossings cost the city approximately $10,000.

But in the past, the city has paid as much as $11,000 for a single crossing, Frankiewicz said.

Frankiewicz said the drainage work is being completed in preparation for asphalt street paving to begin soon.

A contract for the clay-gravel road base has already been let, and paving will begin on Eighth, Bismark and Ninth streets with others to be paved depending on the cost, he said.

"Paving on Tenth Street will be delayed until the completion of the new water well and water line on that street, both of which are under construction," he added.

This work will help complete the city's obligations in this portion of the annexed area but the mayor stressed this work needed to be done and annexed area residents should not have had to file suit against the city to get the services.

"These residents should not have had to wait almost 20 years to get this work completed," Frankiewicz said.

"Providing services in the annexed area has always been high on my list of public works projects," he stated.

"Major sewer expansions, completion of water system with fire protection, the new water well, this drainage work and scheduled roadwork continue to follow through on my commitment to get city services installed in the annexed area," Frankiewicz said.

Bay sewage lagoon flow overestimated

By DENA BISNETTE

An increased sewage flow in the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District's Bay St. Louis lagoon is not large enough to necessitate major changes in the district's current improvement project, engineers say.

Engineers Harold Kaufmann and David Herndon, representing the firm of Reynolds, Smith and Hills, told district board members Wednesday night that the increase in flow is not as large as initially believed.

The estimated flow was 2.5 million gallons per day when plans were made for improvements at the Waveland wastewater treatment plant that are part of the project, which will eventually link the Bay

St. Louis and Waveland sewerage collection systems with the plant as primary treatment facility.

In addition, improvements will also enable the Waveland plant to handle sewerage from the first publicly owned collection systems in the unincorporated area of Hancock County.

These collection systems are scheduled to be constructed as the fourth segment of a four-part project.

Later estimates, however, showed a flow of 3.5 million gallons per day, a large enough increase to necessitate a change in the original project and to jeopardize the district's chance to obtain and keep a 75 percent U.S. Environmental LAGOON—Page 8A

Two Bay juveniles arrested for hanging Russian flag

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Two 17-year-old Bay St. Louis youths were arrested Friday in connection with the displaying of a Russian flag last week at the Hancock County Courthouse.

The youths were identified by information revealed in an anonymous telephone call to Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson Wednesday.

An investigation of the information furnished in the call led to the arrests.

The youths are charged with destroying or defacing a public structure.

"I believe the flag was put up as a prank because the high school students were coming to courthouse for law day," Peterson said.

The youths were released to the custody of their parents pending a youth court hearing.

Debra Soy is in charge of the investigation.

BURGLARY ARRESTS

In an unrelated incident, Kyle Becker and Eric Alshire have been charged with burglary and possession of stolen property.

Becker, 24, of 214 Corinth Dr., Bay St. Louis, and Alshire, 24, of Box St., Gulfport, Bay St. Louis, were arrested Wednesday by Bay St. Louis police.

The youths were charged with burglarizing a home on Box St. and a video cassette recorder and a camera were taken in the burglary.

The video cassette recorder was recovered.

School board continues teacher contract hearing

By DENA BISNETTE

After hearing testimony from two witnesses in open session, the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District Board has decided to continue a personnel hearing for Mrs. Janette Mitchell until next week.

The board was unable to set a date Tuesday night when the hearing was recessed at about 10:30 p.m., but the continuation is expected some time during the week of May 18, Board President Betty Diboll stated.

Mitchell, an English teacher at North Bay Elementary School who had previously worked at Waveland Elementary and has 14 years with the school district, asked through attorneys Jayne Buttross and Rummels that her hearing be held in public.

The board granted her request after Board Attorney Lucien Gex explained that in agreeing to the open hearing, the board could no longer assume any responsibility for invasion of privacy.

After Gex formally opened the hearing and witnesses were removed to prevent them from hearing testimony presented before theirs, Rummels made a motion asking that Gex and Board Member Linda Penrose not be allowed to participate.

He said it would be a conflict of interest for Gex to act as attorney and Penrose to act as a hearing officer because Penrose works for Gex.

Penrose now does only contract work for Gex and other attorneys. She had resigned as his full-time secretary last year after conflict of interest complaints from the public.

Gex contended that he could find no cases prohibiting her from doing contract work for him and the board voted to dismiss the motion.

A subsequent motion requesting appointment of a special hearing officer was also dismissed by the board.

Rummels had also cited conflict of interest in that request, stating that Penrose was working for Gex when he hand-delivered a letter to the board attorney's office.

Gex responded that she was using his typewriter to do contract work for another local attorney.

Superintendent Roger Oge was called as the first witness shortly after 7 p.m. and was questioned by attorneys until about 10 p.m., when Bay Junior High Coach Gary Blaize was brought in as a witness.

Buttross questioned Oge about two personnel files pertaining to Mitchell.

Oge testified that although Mitchell's current principal, Roger James, had recommended her for reemployment, Oge had not and she was notified of the nonreemployment decision by certified letter sent April 4.

Teachers who had been recommended for contract renewal had received letters on March 31, many of which were hand-delivered by Oge where ever he was able to find those teachers in the district's four schools.

The superintendent testified that Mitchell subsequently requested and was provided with her personnel file in order to prepare for the hearing and that she copied the documents it contained in order to prepare for the hearing.

In response to questions from Buttross, Oge stated that an additional file on Mitchell was found "on or about April 8" when a storage area was being cleaned and his secretary found "something in the previous superintendent's private file, I think."

That file was sent to James to deliver to Mitchell, although Oge stated he did not remember dictating a note explaining that the file had just been found.

Mitchell had requested and been given reasons for her nonreemployment when she requested the hearing.

The letter giving those reasons, according to Buttross, cited tardiness, the result of which "students under your care have been left unsupervised;" "failure to use the district's instructional management plan in teaching reading" and "failure to complete assigned tasks."

Some of the personnel file letters from James and Mitchell's previous principal, James Baldree, went as far back as February, 1984.

"You non-renewed her on March 31 yet you based your decision on documents you did not find until April 8?" Buttross asked.

"When Mrs. Mitchell requested written proof, per se, we had them," Oge replied.

Buttross said the second file contained a 1984 Equal Opportunity Employment complaint involving an occasion on which Mitchell had asked her students to write an essay on a black American during Black History Week.

The attorney verified with Oge that the district currently has about 19 black teachers and about 90 white teachers, then cited a letter in which the superintendent had praised a group of teachers including Mitchell for providing students with "real life learning experiences" in connection with a field trip.

Buttross added that the trip fit one of the objectives quoted in Bulletin 171, a list of state-mandated policies that school districts are currently required to formulate and follow.

She also questioned Oge regarding whether he had had conversations about Mitchell prior to recommending nonreemployment.

According to Oge, no specific conversation took place regarding the matter, although James had been HEARING—Page 2A

Electric power interruption slated Tuesday

Mississippi Power Company reports electrical service will be interrupted from 9 to 10 a.m. Tuesday in a triangular area bounded by North Beach Boulevard, North Second Street and Bay View Court in Bay St. Louis.

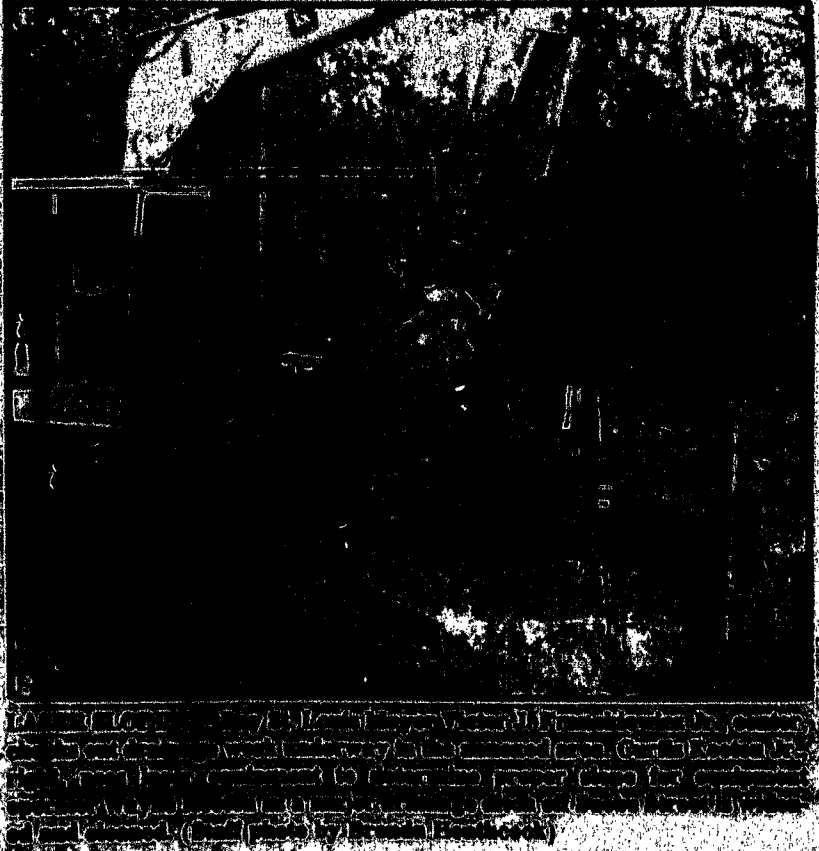

Cross streets included in the area are Timber Lane, Hickory Lane and Phillips Street.

Bernard Jacob, Bay St. Louis-Pass Christian area supervisor for the power company, said the outage is scheduled to accommodate upgrading the system to handle additional capacity.

In the event of inclement weather Tuesday, the work will be rescheduled during the same hours Wednesday, Jacob added.

Planning commission agrees to help buffer zone landowner

BY DENA HENNING

The Hancock County Planning Commission has agreed to help a landowner in the buffer zone of the Mississippi Coast Coliseum. The commission agreed to provide a letter of recommendation for the landowner to the appropriate NASA officials and Congressmen Trent Lott.

Vegas said the only building on the site that would actually be an exception to current prohibitions on roofed structures in the buffer zone would be a small administration facility.

The only other structures proposed are partially enclosed restroom facilities.

Another problem that Vegas faces is a prohibition on overnight camping, something the commission believe is already taking place illegally.

Hancock County officials have been asked on numerous occasions to assist people who wish to reclaim or use their land inside the buffer zone, Commission Chairman Wayne Ducomb Sr. said.

One of the most recent requests made at a public meeting occurred several months ago when Joseph Manieri asked the board of supervisors for a letter recommending that he be allowed to build a residence on his buffer zone land.

Manieri's request was first taken under advisement by the board, then denied.

In other business, the board discussed but took no immediate action regarding Leisure Time Developers, a firm that wants to hook its commercial office-type subdivision utility system into sewerage serving Quality Inn being built in Diamondhead.

Because Diamondhead Utilities has not granted final approval for connection of the line, a special meeting of the planning commission has been set for 4 p.m. May 21 to discuss the matter.

The planning commission requires approval of the utility system before final approval is given for the subdivision.

Also on Thursday, the commission providing him with information regarding Mitchell's performance throughout the school year.

Under cross-examination by Gex, Oge stated that he was aware at the time of the recommendation of Mitchell's alleged tardiness and alleged failure to follow the instructional management plan.

He said the Equal Employment Opportunity Complaint had nothing to do with the recommendation.

Buttross, questioning Oge under redirect procedures, contended that the information provided to Mitchell to support the stated reasons for her nonreemployment were not from the current school year.

Gex said the school employment procedures law does not specify that grounds for nonreemployment be based upon the current school year's personnel records.

When Buttross questioned the superintendent about Mitchell's alleged tardiness, she asked questions regarding the schedule for the start of the school day and who sets that schedule.

She also complained that she was not provided with information regarding the previous year's schedule and filed an objection on that point.

Gex stated that the information is in the board minutes, a public record, and that Buttross could find the schedule herself.

Board Member Charles Benvenutti, agreeing with Gex, asked the board to overrule the objection.

Buttross then asked Oge specifically what Mitchell had done in failing to follow the instructional management plan.

Oge read from a letter written by Baldree, which stated that Mitchell had "a negative attitude" toward criticism and efforts to assist in correcting problems, and that "necessary changes are accomplished with great resentment or not at all."

At that point, Gex objected that Buttross was moving into a new line of questioning that is not allowed under redirect procedures.

The board sustained the objection on a motion from Benvenutti and a second from L.D. Carter, over protests from Buttross that the hearing was not governed by the rules of evidence used in open court.

"Furthermore, this is not a fair and impartial hearing," Buttross stated.

She said the letter from Baldree contained no reference to the instructional management plan and instead consisted of "only personal comments on her (Mitchell's) ethics and personality problems" between the teacher and her administrator.

Blaise, for whom a closed session hearing was conducted on April 16, was questioned by Buttross and Runnels about a telephone conversation he had with Penrose some seven or eight days later.

Blaise explained that he had been promised a letter from the board regarding the hearing within 10 days after the board heard his case, and when it did not arrive he contacted Board President Betty Diboll.

He said Diboll told him that Penrose, who is the board's secretary, had been given the task of typing and mailing the letter.

Blaise subsequently called Penrose at her home and was told by one of her children that he could call her "at Mr. Lucien's office," then spoke briefly to the board member's husband.

Gex then objected that the questions were irrelevant to the Mitchell case but the objection was withdrawn when Runnels said further testimony would reveal the relevance.

Blaise said he did not call Penrose at the attorney's office but attempted to call her at home later. When he reached her, the two first discussed the letter, which had been typed for mailing.

"Then she said, 'Let me fill your ear with something' and she told me she thought my attorney had done a tremendous job getting the facts to the board in my case and that had she been able to vote as an individual, she would have voted with me," the coach said.

"Then she said, 'But, you know, the board must weigh the pros and cons and we had to consider these other hearings coming up, especially the black hearings.'"

Buttross then pointed out that Mitchell is black.

"I hoped I would be judged on my own individual basis, not by the hearings coming up, especially the black hearings, whatever that means," Blaise said.

"Basically, it was put to me that if they did reinstate me, even though my case was brought up before the board and cleared me, I felt that if I were reinstated they would have to follow suit with everybody else."

At that point, Benvenutti objected because Blaise was testifying about matters originally discussed in a hearing closed to the public.

"Only one side of the story is being brought out," the board member said. "We heard two sides and based our decision on that."

Gex said Blaise was waiving the same right to privacy as Mitchell, then asked questions clarifying that the reference to "the black hearings" was the only reference Penrose had made to Blaise in the telephone conversation.

Buttross and Runnels objected to delaying the remainder of the hearing with several witnesses still to testify, but the board overruled the objection.

In addition, the board agreed to extend the summons issued to witnesses until the date the continuation can be heard.

In other business, the board met briefly in executive session with a second teacher Thursday.

APPRECIATION BREAKFAST—Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor J. Frackiewicz, left, and Police Chief Ray Murphy, center, were among several Hancock County law enforcement officers who attended the recent Law Enforcement Appreciation Breakfast. Small Business: America's growth

America's small business owners - 15 million strong today and growing in numbers each year - too often are overlooked when we hand out credits for economic growth and progress. But the plain truth is that much of the health of our country and our communities depends on the health of our small businesses.

Consider: Small business owners create two out of every three new jobs, are responsible for most job training, employ about half of the private work force, contribute about 40 percent of national production and create the jobs in both recession and prosperity. Moreover, the number of small entrepreneurs goes up each year, as more and more men and women go into business for themselves, thus fulfilling a long-held American dream.

It is entirely fitting, then, that President Reagan has proclaimed May 10-16 to be National Small Business Week, as a way of paying special tribute to our small business owners. Outstanding small business men and women will be cited for special honors in every state, and a national small business person of the year will be selected as a highlight of Small Business Week activities in Washington, D.C.

Not only do small entrepreneurs contribute to our economic health, they contribute mightily to the vitality of our communities. Most small business owners, busy as they are, take the time to be community leaders, helping their cities and towns to be better places in which to live.

The theme of this year's Small Business Week is: "Small Business: America's Growth Industry." It is surely an appropriate and correct theme. Small business is growing, and because it is, so is America.

So, to small business men and women across the country - and especially to our small entrepreneurs here at home - we acknowledge the celebration of Small Business Week and say a heartfelt "Thanks."

The People's Business

Weekly Editorial
From Mississippi Economic Council

THE SOURCE OF LEADERSHIP
The veteran leader of Tupelo's highly successful Community Development Foundation said it well a few days ago.

Discussing the role of the local chamber of commerce in economic development, Mr. Martin, speaking to a group of local chamber executives and volunteers at a meeting of the Mississippi Economic Council, said this:

"Too many of us are looking to the courthouse, the city hall, or the capitol to solve our problems.

"We can't expect all our leadership from government. There is a need for private sector leadership in economic development."

The last Governor Paul Johnson offered the same advice two decades ago. Said the Governor: "There are certain things we should and must do for ourselves; there are some things we should not and must not leave to government."

The message is clear: At a time when Mississippi sorely needs to pick up the pace in its economic development efforts, the leadership should and must come from the private sector.

Business leaders must be ready and willing to step out and lead the way in every community in Mississippi.

In those communities where the business leadership steps out front, there will be economic advancement. In those communities where the business leadership takes a back seat, there will be economic stagnation.

Leadership must come from the private sector, not from government.

John C. Stennis

REPORT TO MISSISSIPPIANS

IMPORTANCE OF NATIONAL GUARD AND RESERVE UNITS

National Guard and Reserve units are playing an ever-increasing role in our overall defense program as we work to provide effective national security at affordable costs.

Originally established in the 18th century as "state militias", today's National Guard and Reserve Forces are proving themselves capable of carrying more of the responsibility for keeping our defense strong.

Over the years, both the Congress and the Administration have focused on providing a strong military as a deterrent to war. More and more we've come to rely on the National Guard and Reserve to help meet these needs. But we've often expected them to be ready to respond without providing them with the necessary funding and equipment to be properly trained.

Far too often these important programs have been overlooked. Units have had to "make do" with used and outdated equipment and facilities for training. They have frankly been neglected, receiving the hand-me-downs of the active forces.

During the last few years, I've worked to provide better resources for these programs and great improvements have been made. In 1982, I initiated the Stennis plan which specified annual appropriations for each component of the Guard and Reserve programs. Funds were designated not for major projects but for everyday equipment, new items with the factory paint still on them. This increased attention to equipment and personnel needs has enabled the Guard and Reserve programs to be at the highest level of combat readiness today than ever before in history.

By the end of fiscal year 1987, more than 50 percent of the Army's combat forces and more than 79 percent of its support services will be provided by the Army National Guard and Army Reserve. Similar figures are true for the Naval Marine Corps, Air Force and Coast Guard Reserves and the Air National Guard.

The Guard and Reserve programs have not only added to our military preparedness, but have proven to be a cost-effective way to build our defense program. I am firmly convinced that we get more for the taxpayers dollar from money invested in the National Guard and Reserves. Training and support of personnel in the full-time active forces is more costly than similar provisions for the part-time Guard or Reserve. In the overall national defense budget, funding for the Guard and Reserve program has ranged from 4 to 6 percent since 1973, yet the program plays a significant part in the overall defense effort.

In Mississippi, nearly 13,000 individuals are involved in the National Guard or Reserve. In my visits with these people, I've found them to be men and women of high caliber. They take pride in their work, their community and their country. They are people of character and intelligence and honor. They are deserving of high praise and commitment on the nation's part to enable them to do the job they are expected to perform.

Mississippi's Army National Guard leads the nation in sending the most personnel to active army service schools and is fourth in the nation in reenlisting personnel for additional service. The state's Air National Guard units have been recognized with such awards as the Air Force Outstanding Unit Award, the National Guard Operational Readiness Award and the Air Force Communication Service Commander's Award.

Despite tremendous progress, however, the Guard and Reserve programs continue to have very real needs. I remain committed to these essential programs and will do all that I can within budget restraints to insure their continued progress and success.

As Chairman of the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee in the Senate, I am continuing to push for adequate funding for modern equipment for these Guard and Reserve units. They have proven themselves capable of bearing more of the overall defense responsibility, and we must enable them to effectively do the job for which I am confident they are capable.

The week of May 10-17 has been designated as National Hospital Week.

Hancock Medical Center will be celebrating the event along with the thousands of hospitals across the nation.

On Tuesday and Thursday from 5-7 p.m. there will be special tours for the general public.

In case you haven't gotten a chance to visit our new modern hospital, this will be a good chance for you to do so.

We have heard many very good comments about Hancock Medical Center from persons who have had to use the facility since opening day.

We hope to see you at the special tours at Hancock Medical Center next week.

The Food Pantry continues to provide a very much needed service to our community.

In less than 11 months of operation some 1,573 people from 443 families have received needed help.

The number of persons served by the fine organization has increased each month.

Many volunteers from the area is the main reason the Food Pantry is successful in helping others at a time of need.

During the past week the Food Pantry has moved to a new location.

It is now at the entrance to the old Hancock County Jail behind the courthouse in Bay St. Louis.

Days of operation have now increased to Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to noon.

The many volunteers are still busy setting up the new facility and have received a lot of help from Civil Defense Director Bobby Boudin and trustees from the jail in their move.

One item the Food Pantry is in need of is a large window air conditioner unit.

The air conditioner is needed because the building is very hot to work in and also as a protection for the food products.

If you have an air conditioner you would possibly like to donate to a very good organization, call Mrs. DeRocha at 467-5135.

We know it will be put to good use.

The speed limit has increased to 65 miles per hour on sections of Interstate 10 as it has on other highways across the nation.

While driving on Interstate 10 it appears the drivers who were going 65 and over when the limit was 55 are now driving 75 miles per hour and faster.

The Mississippi State Highway Patrol has issued warnings that persons traveling over the designated speed limits will be ticketed.

Our area has too many highway fatalities to begin with, and it is hoped the number will decrease, instead of increasing.

We urge all motorists to please observe all speed limits.

While talking about speed limits, we would like to urge all motorists driving through ball field areas to please drive slowly.

Speed limits are reduced in all play areas, yet many motorists seem to ignore them.

One of the main reasons for the reduction in speed limits at play areas is because youngsters are apt to forget to look for vehicles while chasing a ball in the street.

Please drive carefully.

VOLUNTEERS PARTICIPATE IN IMPROVING STATE

Each year the Governor's Office celebrates the participation of volunteers in activities coordinated by the Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs. We have just concluded the Voluntary Action Fair and an awards program for outstanding volunteers during this year.

This program helps remind all of us how important volunteers are to their fellow citizens in this state. As I have traveled throughout Mississippi, I have seen volunteers in action with every department of state government. They provide free services that our strapped state budget could never afford to pay for. And their approach to unsalaried government service is one of love and sacrifice.

Let me cite just a few examples. In Oxford, at the North Mississippi Mental Health Center, I saw foster grandparents helping mentally retarded adults and children with their daily tasks. Often the jobs of these capable citizens were not planned in terms of training and feeding these Mississippians, but they accomplished their tasks with tenderness and with the caring of a parent.

Throughout the state, volunteers have made our Project Second Chance program a success. These volunteers have helped former prison inmates adjust to their lives in a free society, providing every type of service from job placement to education to health care to family assistance.

Volunteers are improving the future for many of our citizens by participating in our literacy program. The adult literacy program we operate through the Governor's Office is built on the foundation of teacher-volunteers. And their successes are many. They have helped many people learn to read and write and thus to be able to better gain job placement or just to improve their own self-esteem.

I could recall hundreds more incidents that I have personally witnessed of volunteers who make a difference in our state. You know them in your communities too. On behalf of the Governor, I want to say thank you to everyone who volunteers their services to help make life better for a neighbor.

AAA answers new speed limit questions

JACKSON—On April 2, Congress approved a Highway Bill authorizing the expenditure of $4 billion for highway construction and $1.5 billion for mass transit programs over five years.

The most highly publicized provision of the new law allows states to increase the speed limit on rural sections of interstate highways to 65 mph. Since 1974, federal law had set the speed limit on the nation's highways at 55 mph.

The lifting of the 55 mph speed limit will not affect the nation's driving habits as much as some reports have predicted. The new law allows states to set new speed limits only on relatively remote stretches of interstate.

Highways passing near or through cities of 50,000 population or larger will remain posted at 55 mph.

A 1964 study by the U.S. Department of Transportation found that only about six percent of the nation's highways are considered "rural" interstates, so most of the nation's highway system will not be affected by the new law.

So far, most of the states that have raised their speed limit to 65 are in the West, where most of the rural interstates are. Nevertheless, questions about the effect of the new law are vacation plans, driving times and car maintenance may arise. Here are some of the most frequently asked questions and answers, prepared by AAA Mississippi:

Q: If I increase my speed from 55 to 65, what will be the effect on my car's gasoline consumption?

A: You can expect to use 12 to 24 percent more fuel driving at 65 mph than you would driving the same road at 55 mph. Expressed in a different way, your gasoline mileage (miles-per-gallon) will drop by anywhere from 11 to 19 percent.

The increase in fuel consumption does not correspond precisely with the decrease in gasoline mileage because of the mathematical formulas used to derive the figures.

Q: I have a small car. How will driving at 65 mph affect the engine and other mechanical components?

A: As long as the car is properly maintained, driving at 65 mph will not have a significant effect on your car's engine and other mechanical components. For most cars, engine speeds increase no more than about 500 rpm from 55 to 65. The car's engine speed is measured in rpms, or revolutions per minute.

The exception may be when a small car is used to pull a trailer. A car's engine and transmission work harder when towing a trailer, and some small cars are working to their capacity when pulling a trailer at 55 mph.

Exceeding that speed limit might cause the engine and transmission to overheat, resulting in premature wear.

One item often ignored by drivers is tire air pressure. Many drivers unwittingly drive with too little air in their tires. At low speeds the effect may be premature tire wear. At high speeds overheating can occur, resulting in tire failure.

At 55 or 65 mph, proper tire pressure is especially important. When driving at highway speeds for more than an hour, tires should be inflated to the maximum recommended pressure as noted on the sidewall of the tire. Many car manufacturers now suggest that the tires on their new cars be inflated to the maximum for both city and highway driving.

AAA also recommends against driving mobile homes faster than 55 mph, regardless of the speed limit. Although some mobile homes are able to reach speeds of 65, driving them at that speed for a prolonged period puts an undue strain on the engine and transmission.

Q: What safety measures should drivers take when traveling at the new speed?

A: Although drivers should always look ahead to anticipate traffic problems, it becomes even more important to do so at 65 mph. The main reason for this is the increased stopping distance of a car traveling at 65 mph compared to 55 mph.

A car in reasonably good condition traveling at 55 mph on a dry road takes between 230 and 275 feet to stop, including driver reaction time. At 65 mph the stopping distance ranges from 300 to 355 feet. That's a significant increase in stopping distance.

AAA has always recommended that highway drivers keep an interval of 2 seconds driving time between themselves and cars in front of them. At 65 mph, AAA recommends that drivers increase this "safety gap" to at least 3 seconds.

As in all driving situations, regardless of the speed, AAA urges drivers to follow common-sense rules of the road. Drivers should constantly plan "escape" routes for their vehicles in case an emergency situation develops.

Q: How much time will I really save driving at 65 mph instead of 55 mph?

A: Not as much as you might expect. An increase of 10 mph in the speed limit doesn't mean you gain 10 miles every hour you travel. It's instead of 55.

All drivers take breaks. AAA can maintain a constant addition, driving stressful and tiring. You'll find yourself getting more tired when driving 65 mph.

Actually, drivers who increase the speed limit to 65 mph will find that their travel time is not as much as they expect. The increase in speed will be offset by the increase in fuel consumption and the increase in tire wear.

Crime commission executive seeking supervisor post

Jerry Medford of Diamondhead has qualified as a candidate for Hancock County Board of Supervisors, Beat 3.

He and his wife, Betty, have been married 34 years and have two children and two grandchildren.

Medford is executive director of the Mississippi Coast Crime Commission and is taking a leave of absence from that organization to campaign for this position.

Medford is a retired federal agent who has served both in the Drug Enforcement Administration and the U.S. Customs Service. His last position was regional director of the Drug Interdiction Program for the central Gulf States.

Medford is a member of the Mississippi State Legislative Committee of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) and is also the state president of the National Association of Retired Federal Employees.

He has served as foreman of a Hancock County Grand Jury.

Medford has served on the board of Diamondhead Property Owner's Association and also the Community Association. He is a member of both the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Medford was a member of the Governor's Executive Committee for drug abuse and law enforcement with past Mississippi Governor Fitch.

He has also worked with Governor

William Allen on his program for finding solutions for drug abuse by education, rehabilitation and coordinating law enforcement.

He has appeared before two Congressional hearings directed at local-state and federal law enforcement procedures to improve anti-smuggling operations.

Medford received a BS degree in criminology from the University of Houston and has received extensive training in management throughout his government career.

Medford said he believes his broad experience in government along with his experience in community affairs qualifies him to serve as county supervisor.

He further states that Hancock County is growing and it's voters deserve to have the best-qualified citizens to serve in this key position.

He believes the county unit system will work provided that supervisors develop management expertise and learn to work together as a management team rather than as individuals.

"We owe it to the people of Hancock County to get the most out of our tax dollars by better programs and planning," Medford said.

'Speaking Oracles of God'

By H. Edwin Keadley, Minister

Bay St. Louis

RESPONSIBLE MOTHERHOOD

Mary Oler said, "The statement probably made most often by the nation in general is, 'I don't have time to write letters! No time to take the children on a picnic! No time to call a lonely friend! Writing deadlines to meet? Couldn't find time to get the writing done! Dress making unfinished? Couldn't find time to put the hem in the dress! Unprepared for Bible Lesson? Couldn't find time to study!'" (60th Annual Harding Bible Lectureship, The Christian Home, Page 127)

Do mothers crowd their time with lesser things of importance and neglect their children and things of greater importance? Is the secular a more important user of our time than the spiritual?

The Bible will prepare every individual to face every situation in life. The inspired Peter says, "Seeing that his divine power has granted to everything pertaining to life and godliness, through the true knowledge of him who called us by his own glory and excellence. (II Peter 1:3)

Fathers are commanded to bring up their children in the "nurture and admonition of the Lord." (Eph. 6:4) This is the greatest responsibility of motherhood. Though the verse places the responsibility upon the father, the mother is certainly one of the greatest instruments in carrying out the Biblical command.

The source of faith is the word of God. (Romans 10:17)

At what age should a mother begin to teach her child in order to produce faith?

Paul tells us when Timothy's faith began to be produced. "And that from a babe thou hast known the sacred writings which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus." (II Tim. 3:15)

Who taught Timothy the sacred writings? Paul informs us, "Having been reminded of the unforgotten faith that is in thee; which dwelt in thy grandmother Lois and thy mother Eunice; and I am persuaded in thee also." (II Tim. 1:5)

What greater compliment could be given to a mother than to have someone say to her son or daughter "the faith manifested in your life began first in your mother?"

It was said of Jesus, "And Jesus advanced in wisdom, and stature and in favor with God and men." (Luke 2:52)

The Old Testament gives two great examples of motherhood. They are Jochebed, the mother of Moses and Hannah, the mother of Samuel.

Moses was born in slavery in Egypt. The Pharaoh was killing Jewish children under the age of two years to thin the population of the Jews.

Moses' mother hid him until it was no longer possible. She put him in an ark and set afloat in the Nile river.

Whether it was by design we do not know. However, it was at a palace where Pharaoh's daughter came to bathe; Miriam, Moses' sister, was left to watch to see what would be done unto him.

Pharaoh's daughter, when she saw Moses, decided to keep him as her own.

Miriam came and offered to get her a Jewish woman as her nursemaid. Miriam got her mother. Jochebed used her opportunities to instill in Moses faith in God and a loyalty to his people.

This is manifested when Moses at the age of 40 defended a fellow Jew and killed the Egyptian.

Hannah prayed for a child. Though she was well treated by her husband she felt humiliated. This feeling came about because her husband's other wife, Peninnah, had children and she did not.

She prayed for a son with the promise she would dedicate him to the service of God. In time Samuel was born.

At an early age she carried him to the temple to minister unto Jehovah before Eli, the priest. Every year she came with new clothes. Samuel became the great prophet and judge of Israel.

These women were unselfish and dedicated mothers. May their tribe increase today!

HMC schedules special events for Hospital Week observance

The employees at Hancock Medical Center feel good about the care they provide to patients and the support their hospital provides to Hancock County and surrounding areas. Therefore, Hancock Medical Center is joining the celebration of National Hospital Week, May 10-16, with a series of special events, based on the theme "We Feel Good About Helping You Feel Better."

Events scheduled throughout the week for the general public include the free blood pressure screening on Tuesday, May 12, from 10 to 11:30 a.m. in the hospital classroom; guided tours of the new facility on Tuesday and Thursday, May 12 and 14, from 5 to 7 p.m.; and the organizational meeting of the Hancock Medical Center Medical Explorers Post for young men and women 14-20 on Thursday, May 14, at 7:30 p.m. in the hospital cafeteria.

"Our employees get a real sense of satisfaction, not just from helping sick patients get well, but from helping all members of the community improve their health and feel their very best," said Philip Wolfe, hospital administrator. "We appreciate the support we receive from area residents and community organizations in working to make our community a healthy one."

National Hospital Week is sponsored each year by the American Hospital Association and its 6,000 member hospitals.

Hancock Medical Center joins this national observance to strengthen communications and understanding among its patients, employees and the community.

ETV Brief

LEARN TO READ

Persons who know of adults who do not know how to read or who have difficulty reading are urged to inform them of the rebroadcast of "Learn to Read" on Mississippi ETV.

The series, which is being broadcast for the last time on ETV due to expiring rights, can be seen at 6:15 a.m., Monday through Friday, with a rebroadcast each morning at 11.

The series of 30 half-hour lessons is designed to teach the basics of reading to adults who would like to learn in the privacy of their own homes.

Each program contains a review of the previous lesson; introduction and practice of new material; and instructional and entertaining capsules of information. Also, a segment called "Getting Along" teaches viewers practical reading skills such as how to recognize important signs, read food and product labels and use a telephone book, for example. Some programs also will feature well-known celebrities offering messages of encouragement and support to students.

HMC organizing Explorer post

Hancock Medical Center in Bay St. Louis has scheduled an organizational meeting of the Hancock Medical Center Medical Explorer Post Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the hospital cafeteria.

Medical exploring is a year-round civic program for young men and women ages 14 to 20, and it is planned and executed by the Medical Explorers themselves under the guidance of advisors and consultants.

Designed to meet the needs of the next generation of citizens, the program achieves its purpose through a planned program of action that beings young people voluntarily into association with adults.

These adults are carefully selected and trained, and, by the example of their character, citizenship traits, knowledge and promotion of mental and physical fitness, they are a positive force in the lives of youth.

Medical exploring helps youth find their present and future roles as individuals in society and the world of work. These goals are fulfilled through the planned program of action in activities related to vocational, social, service, citizenship, outdoor and personal fitness experience areas.

The number of post members will be limited, and those interested are urged to contact Richard Flowers at Hancock Medical Center, 467-9081, extension 2250, between 8:15 a.m. and 5:45 p.m. Monday through Friday to make reservations for the Thursday, May 14 meeting. Parents are also welcome at the organizational meeting.

National Guard to host open house at Camp Shelby

The Mississippi National Guard will host its second annual GuardFest activities at Camp Shelby, with training demonstrations, fly-overs, equipment displays and live music scheduled.

The May 29 event, from 11 a.m. until 4 p.m., will demonstrate the diverse array of skills employed in the Guard and highlight the historical aspects of the military.

Musical entertainment includes the Mississippi Army National Guard's 41st Army Band, which will perform songs from jazz to pop to martial music.

Also, a special reunion will take place at GuardFest, when former members of Mississippi's own "The Rolling Stones Band," popular during the late-1950's, will gather for a "jam session" at the Parade Field reviewing stand.

The session will be led by former lead vocalist Andy Anderson, who currently tours with the Dawnbreakers band from Nashville.

Members of the Mississippi Air National Guard will round out the musical line-up with a "Magnolia State version of pickin' and grinnin'."

Weapons displayed will include small arms from the M-16 to M-14 machinegun, and larger weapons up to the M109 Self-propelled howitzer and the M110 2" self-propelled howitzer.

Aircraft such as the RF-4 "Phantom" and the A-10 "Thunderbolt" attack jet will perform fly-overs, along with the Mississippi Air National Guard's newest aircraft, the C-141 "Starlifter" cargo jet.

Demonstrations planned include a mock air assault, helicopter rappelling and helicopter maneuvers. Stanford's Mississippi Battery, including its M109 howitzers, will display their capabilities. The 1963 Army's "M109" tank, will be displayed along with the Bradley Fighting Vehicle and other tactical vehicles.

A special attraction for kids will be the camouflage booth, where Guardsmen will paint faces in water-based, jungle colors.

Food and drinks will be on sale. GuardFest is free and open to the general public.

Du Pont receives gold medal for environmental performance

The World Environment Center's 1987 Gold Medal for International Corporate Environmental Achievement has been awarded to the Du Pont Company.

Du Pont was commended for its "new pollution-reducing technologies and enlightened environmental policy, implemented beyond mandated requirement and applicable throughout the world," by the WEC Award Jury.

U. S. Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Lee Thomas presented the award to Du Pont President Edgar S. Woolard recently at the Hall of Presidents in Washington, D.C.

"The award is one that all Du Pont employees share because it is the environmental progress made at individual plants, as well as the company's overall environmental policy, that captured this honor," according to Dave Settle, plant manager at Du Pont's DeLisle plant.

Settle also said the DeLisle plant was the first chemical plant to be awarded the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's Star Award.

"We at the DeLisle plant are proud of our environmental record and are committed to continue this performance," he said.

WEC President Whitman Bassow emphasized that industry's leadership is a key factor in preserving and enhancing the environment.

"Du Pont, by its policies and leadership and by its outstanding accomplishments, can serve as a model for other corporations to follow," Dr. Bassow said.

The World Environment Center was established in 1974 to increase public understanding of environmental and development issues. Founded with initial support from the United Nations Environment Programme, the Center is a wholly independent, non-profit, non-advocacy organization, providing information and a broad range of technical assistance and training for the enhancement of environmental management practices worldwide.

Founded in 1892, Du Pont is one of the largest chemical and energy companies in the world, with plants employing 140,000 people in more than 50 countries.

The DeLisle plant produces titanium dioxide, a white pigment widely used in paint, paper and plastic; it employs 525 people.

Protection Agency grant for plant improvements, according to Kaufmann.

After testing, the 3.5 million gallons per day, which equals roughly 1,600 gallons per minute, was found to be incorrect, the engineers stated. The actual lagoon flow is closer to 1,100 gallons per minute.

Kaufmann explained that the period during which the high flows were measured was also the time during which Bay St. Louis received its highest rainfall in 10 years, and high rainfall will alter flow measurement.

The lagoon was supposed to be phased out of the project, but Kaufmann and Herndon are now recommending that the pond be retained as an equalization facility.

Kaufmann said the lagoon flow into the plant must be kept at no more than 2.5 million gallons per day in order to satisfy Environmental Protection Agency standards, and the facility might therefore be needed to hold some of the sewage to keep flows at regulation level during exceptionally heavy rainfall.

A flow of 2.6 or higher would result in some type of federal disciplinary action, he added.

The problem of the amount of flow could be resolved by increasing the size of clarifying equipment at the treatment plant, but the two engineers said a more advisable method would be "to never turn off the pumps at the lagoon and to put sewage into it only when necessary."

Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor Frankiewicz Jr., the city's representative on the wastewater board, asked if it might be possible to discharge lagoon contents directly into the environment when the sewage level is low and the water is relatively uncontaminated.

Kaufmann said it is unlikely that the Environmental Protection Agency would ever approve such a procedure.

He added that the lagoon may eventually be phased out of the project if it remains unused for several years.

PROTECTION—Gulf Radio employees Joe Gilliam, left, and Chuck Tippit install a section of a protective grill in a Bay St. Louis Police Department patrol car Thursday. Gilliam said Gulf Radio is installing the device, also known as a riot shield, in four of the city's police cars and has previously put them in several

Bay police looking for busy burglar

BY DENA BISNETTE

Bay St. Louis authorities are still seeking a person who apparently attempted to burglarize four homes and the Hancock County Health Department between 3 a.m. and 5 p.m. Thursday morning.

According to Bay St. Louis Police Detective Chuck James, the culprit apparently burglarized a pickup truck parked in front of a Felicity Street residence first, then attempted to break into a house next door.

"We think that was a decoy, whether or not he intended it to be. He woke up a woman there who scared him away," James said.

While the police were occupied with the report at the Felicity Street home where the woman was awakened, the burglar apparently robbed two residences on Corinth Street.

"We think he went to the health department last," the detective added.

James said the thief netted a total of about $50, one wallet containing credit cards and a driver's license and one hunting knife taken from a garage at one of the homes.

If the suspect is caught, he will be charged with burglary of an occupied dwelling at night, which carries a stiffer penalty than a similar daytime burglary, James added.

St. Michael's farm boys anxious to learn sailing

St. Michael's Farm for Boys near Carriere recently fell heir to an 18-foot Cape Dory Sloop—in need of a paint job, minor repairs and dock space.

Since St. Michael's Farm is also suffering the financial problems of a sagging economy that have filtered down from the oil patch woes of the area, extra funds for the maintenance of the boat, docking fees, and fees for sailing instruction were not available.

For a time, it seemed as though the boat would have to be sold rather than used by the boys—but when heads and kinder hearts prevailed.

First, Don Hessemer of Bay St. Louis offered a free slip for the boat; next, Ruffledge Parker of Brelli's Boats and Motors Inc. offered to provide vide paint and minor equipment, and lastly, Ed Haber of Jourdan River Marina and Boats Inc. agreed to haul the boat for its paint job and repairs.

The final, and very vital need is for volunteer sailors to teach the boys at St. Michael's how to sail.

Steve Dunn has agreed to act as coordinator for the sailing program.

"If you can devote some time to help with the sailing instruction, please contact Steve at 467-9028," urges Dr. Robert Escudero, farm director and himself a graduate of St. Michael's.

Since 1954, St. Michael's Farm for boys has been helping troubled youths rebuild their lives.

An Episcopal-related, non-profit home and accredited school with year-round, 24-hour supervised care for troubled boys, the facility is not situated in the usual sense, but a home that offers understanding, guidance, love and discipline, Escudero explained.

"If you're a sailor, won't you please donate an hour or two of your time to teach these boys the rudiments, the discipline and the joys of sailing," he urges.

"Rarely do you have an opportunity to 'save a boy and make a man.' St. Michael's needs your support now more than ever before," Escudero added.

For information contact Escudero at 798-3418 or write St. Michael's Farm for Boys, Bargetown Road, Carriere, P.O. Drawer #10, Picayune, MS 39466.

Researchers seek treatment

Tinnitus problem studied at Tulane Medical Center

NEW ORLEANS, La.—In a long-term study at Tulane University Medical Center, researchers continue to seek a treatment for tinnitus, a condition that causes ringing, popping and other unpleasant noises in the ears of 36 million Americans.

Professor of pharmacology Paul Guth, PhD, with Charles Norris, PhD, Hollis Reed, MD, all of the department of otolaryngology, are conducting a large scale clinical trial of a drug that has shown promise in the treatment of tinnitus, which is the most common symptom associated with hearing loss.

The drug is called aminooxyacetic acid (AOAA) and it was first developed as a treatment for epilepsy. Researchers now believe AOAA has some properties that will help suppress tinnitus in patients, says Dr. Guth.

A small sample of patients has been studied and a significant number said their tinnitus improved after being given AOAA in capsules, he says.

The American Tinnitus Association estimates there are more than 100,000 cases of severe tinnitus in Louisiana. Severe tinnitus can cause some functional impairment, depending on the psychological makeup of the individual, says Dr. Guth.

Some people are able to disregard the noise completely, while others devote their entire existence to it. There have been a number of suicides attributed to tinnitus, Dr. Guth says.

Dr. Guth is now seeking more patients with tinnitus for the study. Those selected for the tinnitus program at Tulane will undergo three weeks of testing. Participants must be in good general health and women must not be of child-bearing potential.

Some causes of tinnitus are repeated exposure to loud noise, head trauma and drug reactions. Dr. Guth will recruit tinnitus patients whose disorders are due to these and other common causes.

The study is being funded in part by a grant from the Orphan Drug Program of the National Institutes of Health.

Women-owned businesses up sharply

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The number of women-owned businesses in the country has increased markedly in recent years.

Government statistics indicate that firms owned by women have grown more than twice as fast as firms owned by men. Women-owned businesses, just about all of them small, are increasing 9.4 percent a year compared with an annual 4.3 percent increase for men-owned companies.

According to President Reagan's Annual Report on the State of Small Business, much of this growth can be attributed to women's expanded participation in the labor force.

The rapid growth in women-owned companies will be noted during National Small Business Week, to be celebrated May 19-25. Women business owners throughout the country will be honored at a special luncheon.

Two women in business are the statistics show that about 12 percent of self-employed Americans are women. About once every four self-providers in the country is woman-owned. About half of women-owned businesses are in the service sector.

The President's report said, "American workers in general and women in particular have chosen self-employment over wage-and-salary work for a number of reasons: a distrust of large corporate life; the aging of the population toward prime business owning age of 35-44 years; technological innovations that reduce business startup costs; and the growing trend of firm to contract-out services."

"Other economic forces of the 1980s, such as industry deregulation, may also have stimulated business formation."

The U.S. Small Business Administration, which coordinates Small Business Week activities, has an office of Women's Business Ownership to assist present and prospective women business owners. The office also coordinates federal initiatives to assist women to get into business.

Women's Center recognizes volunteers

The home of Carmen Engram was the setting for a recognition tea honoring volunteers who staff the Women's Center's Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault Crisis line and who work within the center with victims of Domestic Violence.

Certificates of Appreciation were presented to forty (40) volunteers for dedicated service by Director Jane Philo. She commended the volunteers for "their tireless efforts in responding to people in crisis, many times in the middle of the night."

"Staff alone cannot provide twenty-four (24) hour service to victims, three hundred and sixty-five (365) days a year. You volunteers make this service a reality for our Gulf Coast community. We value and appreciate you," Philo said.

Initial and in-service training is provided for volunteers on an ongoing basis. Orientation for new Sexual Assault Crisis line volunteers will take place on May 16.

KATY

Lettuce, one of the earliest known vegetables, was praised a few thousand years ago in Mediterranean lands as the "water plant" because it refreshed thirty travelers as they went along their way.

And to this day, lettuce is a great "refresher" as salad or accompaniment to other foods and so on; for example, the familiar 'BLT' - bacon, lettuce and tomato sandwich - is especially refreshing in the good 'ole' and hot summertime, isn't it?

Lettuce graced the dinner tables of long ago Persian kings; the famed Greek healer, Hippocrates, sang praises of its medicinal properties, and the great philosopher Aristotle lauded its goodness in Rome of long ago.

Columbus is said to have carried seeds of lettuce and other vegetables to the Bahamas on his second voyage to the New World. The sort of lettuce the early colonists grew in their gardens in the New World, so history tells us, came from Ponce de Leon's plantings in Puerto Rico during his explorations. And, it was when the Spanish padres set up their missions in California that lettuce came to the West Coast.

Much as I relish lettuce as a salad - often, just "plain" with a good mustardy oil and vinegar dressing, I also like to enjoy it in other ways. One of my favorites of favorite ways is:

WILTED LETTUCE

Just combine three parts of hot bacon drippings with one part of cider vinegar. Zip the taste with pinches of dry mustard (or, for me, Creole mustard) along with dashes of sugar, pepper and salt, blend well, and pour over crisp, chilled lettuce leaves or chunks.

I like to crumble up bacon and sprinkle over all. At other times, I like to shred the lettuce, combine it with chopped tomatoes and green onions, and top it all with crumbled bacon or chipped bits of ham (vegetarians, note: the imitation bacon bits are good, also for this, and give the bacon-taste).

Then I like to douse it all liberally with "red eye" gravy, hot, of course, just before serving. Incidentally, that old, old Southern favorite, red-eye gravy, is simply and easily made by frying a ham slice in a heavy skillet (cast iron skillet for me) then adding strong coffee or water to the luscious "burnings," or bits, in the pan, and stirring like mad.

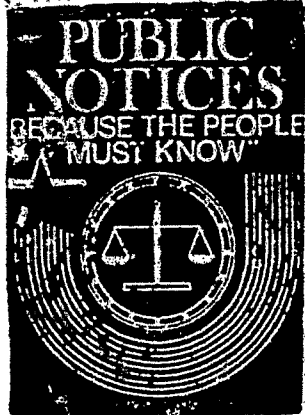

Lettuce is also tasty as a cooked vegetable. I often shred it (I must confess, usually when the head is losing its freshness) and braise in just the merest bit of water or bacon fat or whatever, with a bit of pepper and lemon squeezings, cooking and stirring until tender, but still somewhat on the crisp side. Enjoy!

LIBRARY DISPLAY—Nancy McGuffee, executive director of the Hancock County Library, has arranged a display of books and pamphlets on the history of the county. The display is located in the library at 100 N. Main St. in Bay St. Louis. The display is open to the public during regular library hours through May 15. For more information, call Nancy McGuffee at 435-1968.

BALLET MAGNIFICAT—The touring professional company, Ballet Magnificat which is based at Belhaven College in Jackson and believed to be the only all-Christian ensemble in the United States, will perform at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Pass Christian High School Auditorium. The event is being sponsored by Trinity Episcopal Church's Martha Guild. Tickets are $10 and may be purchased at the church or at the auditorium on Thursday evening.

Several of the ladies have been active members since the 1950's and 1960's, with one of the "original seven" members still enjoying the pleasures and camaraderie of the club.

What's hot in cotton?

By Don Combs
USDA Information Staff
 Imagine a sock or glove that generates heat when it's cold, warming your fingers like a little stove. Or draperies that warm up when cold drafts hit them.
 Experimental cotton-fabrics with built-in thermostats already have been developed at a U.S. Department of Agriculture lab in New Orleans. Tyrone Vigo, a chemist with the Agricultural Research Service's Southern Research Lab, has named his creation "Polytherm."

Key to the invention is a group of inexpensive chemicals called polyethylene glycols, long used by motorists for antifreeze. Vigo found a way to attach antifreeze molecules to most types of fibers, including wool, cotton, cotton blends, fiberglass and acrylics. The process is similar to that used to make permanent press fabrics.
 Recently, Vigo and his colleagues made up some demonstration cotton tee shirts out of Polytherm, and they really work! When air temperatures reach about 75°, the treated fabric counteracts the increase in the mercury by absorbing body heat, providing a cooling effect.
 Conversely, when the temperature dips below 40°F, the same fabric liberates heat to the body.

 Vigo says the tee shirts do this through the reversible melting and hardening of the antifreeze crystals.
 How much energy a treated fabric will store and release depends on the kind of fiber, and the kind and amount of chemical applied.

When the chemist first came up with his invention, it had a serious shortcoming. It wouldn't stand up under washing or prolonged exposure to rain. But now Vigo has made his treatment more durable, and his experimental fabrics will retain their thermal properties for up to 10 home launderings. They also resist shrinkage.

But he and his associate, Joe Bruno, are not yet satisfied; they are looking for long-term durability. And they are confident they will achieve it.

The list of possible uses for a perfected Polytherm boggles the mind: carpeting, building materials, military, work, sports apparel, and special applications in the biomedical and aerospace industries.

Perhaps best of all, it could mean an end to the heavy, cumbersome overcoat, so keep your fingers crossed.

Jelly making, pickles, canning and freezing included in food preservation program

No time to cook...but don't want to give up the flavor of homemade jellies? Love home preserved pickles but can't wait two weeks for them to cure?

Attend a "Quick and Safe" food preservation program Thursday, May 14, 7 p.m. at the County Extension Office.

The class will cover no-cook jellies, quick and easy pickles, freezing fruits and vegetables, as well as the time-honored methods of canning vegetables at home.

Progress has changed for the better some food preservation techniques.

Participants will learn the latest in scientific information on home canning and freezing, plus lots of new quick techniques that will fit their busy lifestyles.

Questions concerning the program can be answered by calling the Hancock County Extension home economist at 467-5456.

The program is free and open to any interested individual.

LIFE'S LITTLE UPS AND DOWNS

Do your children tell you everything? If they have taken a spill, fallen off a bike, or injured themselves playing football, you may be the last to know. That's why it's important to give your children a Chiropractic Checkup regularly. Many times, untreated childhood accidents turn into spinal distortions that may not show up for months or years. Parents never really know how many little bumps, knocks, and falls their children have had. Why take a chance? Bring your family in for a Chiropractic Checkup. CALL TODAY!
